

Third-Party Content, Trademarks & Image Rights Notice

Redfern Media | redfernmedia.com

Last updated: August 12, 2026

Redfern Media respects the intellectual property, privacy, publicity, and other proprietary rights of third parties. This notice explains how third-party names, trademarks, logos, photographs, likenesses, testimonials, and other creative materials may appear on redfernmedia.com and clarifies that their appearance does not, by itself, imply sponsorship, affiliation, approval, or endorsement.

Third-Party Trademarks and Logos

Trademarks, service marks, trade names, publication names, company names, product names, and logos displayed on this website may be the property of their respective owners. Redfern Media does not claim ownership of third-party marks.

Where a third-party mark is displayed, it is used only in connection with the context in which it appears, such as identifying a publication, media reference, client, business, platform, product, or service. Unless expressly stated otherwise, the appearance of a third-party mark does not mean that the trademark owner sponsors, endorses, is affiliated with, or has approved Redfern Media or its services.

Redfern Media may modify, replace, or remove third-party marks when appropriate to reflect current permissions, brand-use requirements, or changes in the underlying reference.

Media and Publication References

References to media outlets, publications, television programs, websites, or other organizations are intended to describe genuine editorial coverage, mentions, appearances, citations, or other documented references where applicable.

A media outlet logo or publication name should not be interpreted as an endorsement of Redfern Media. Any description such as “featured in,” “mentioned in,” “quoted by,” or similar wording is intended to describe the nature of the underlying reference and not a commercial sponsorship unless expressly disclosed.

Photographs, Likenesses and Testimonial Images

Photographs and images of clients, customers, endorsers, team members, speakers, authors, public figures, and other individuals may appear on this website in connection with testimonials, case studies, biographical information, media references, or other relevant content.

Redfern Media does not claim ownership of an individual’s name, identity, likeness, or other personal rights. The use of a person’s photograph, name, title, or testimonial does not imply that the person endorses every Redfern Media product, service, statement, or business activity beyond the specific context presented.

Testimonials and quotations are presented to reflect the substance of the speaker’s experience or statement. Where a material connection exists between Redfern Media and an endorser that could affect how a reasonable consumer evaluates the endorsement, Redfern Media intends to disclose that connection clearly and conspicuously.

Stock Photography and Creative Assets

This website may contain stock photography, icons, illustrations, graphics, design elements, fonts, video, or other creative assets supplied by third-party creators, licensors, marketplaces, agencies, contractors, or technology providers. Such materials remain subject to the rights and license terms of their respective owners or providers.

Images used for illustrative purposes may depict models and are not necessarily photographs of Redfern Media clients, employees, partners, or customers unless the accompanying content specifically identifies them as such.

No Transfer of Third-Party Rights

Nothing on this website grants visitors any license or right to use, reproduce, publish, distribute, modify, display, or otherwise exploit any third-party trademark, photograph, image, likeness, or other protected material. Any permitted use must come from the applicable rights holder or otherwise be authorized by law.

Rights-Holder Requests

If you are a rights holder or authorized representative and believe that a logo, photograph, image, name, likeness, quotation, testimonial, or other material appearing on redfernmedia.com is being used without appropriate authorization, or that information identifying you is inaccurate or no longer current, please contact Redfern Media so the matter can be reviewed promptly.

Please identify the material at issue, the page where it appears, the basis for your request, and reliable contact information for follow-up.
